Act One traces Barnum's early career as a side show promoter. Against the better judgement of his wife Chairy, he books a series of specialty acts including Joice Heth, the oldest woman in the world and Tom Thumb, a man only 25 inches tall. Barnum has a great public success promoting the Swedish Soprano Jenny Lind, but this leads to marital discord.

Act Two. Barnum's relationship with Jenny Lind sours and he returns to the quiet domestic life in Bridgeport, Connecticut. At the urging of his wife he embarks on a political career but this ends when he is betrayed by his political backers. Realizing his true talent lies in showmanship, he enters a partnership with Mr. Bailey.
